Continuing Education Disclosure Form

In compliance with ACCME's Standards for Integrity and Independence in Accredited Continuing Education, the APA, provider of continuing education activities, has a disclosure process to ensure that everyone who is in a position to control the content of an educational activity has disclosed all financial relationships with all ineligible companies (commercial interest) within the past 24 months (see glossary definitions). The APA has mechanisms in place to identify and mitigate all disclosed conflicts of interest prior to an educational activity.

The prospective audience must be informed of the planners' and presenters' affiliations with ineligible companies (commercial interests) by an acknowledgement in published materials and by oral or visual disclosure to participants at live sessions. Disclosure by slide is also required. If an individual has no relationships, the learner must be informed of that as well. The APA also requires identification by presenters and authors of discussion of unlabeled uses of a commercial product or investigational use of a product not yet approved for this purpose.

Each planner and presenter/author (including co-chairpersons, and discussants, and all authors) must complete a Disclosure Form, even if no relationship exists. An individual who refuses to disclose will be disqualified from being a planning committee member, a faculty member, or an author of continuing education.

Program Planners must affirm that they commit to recusal if they themselves disclose a conflict of interest in the planning of an education activity.

ACCME Glossary of Terms

Ineligible Companies (Commercial Interests)

The ACCME defines ineligible companies (commercial interests) as any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by, or used on, patients.

Financial relationships

Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected.

This disclosure Statement focuses on financial relationships with ineligible companies (commercial interests) in the 24-month period preceding the time that the individual is being asked to assume a role controlling content of the activity.

Conflict of Interest

Circumstances create a conflict of interest when an individual has an opportunity to affect CME content regarding products or services of a commercial interest with which he/she has a financial relationship.

ACCME Glossary of Terms

Ineligible Companies (Commercial Interests)

The ACCME defines ineligible companies (commercial interests) as any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by, or used on, patients.

Financial relationships

Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected.

This disclosure Statement focuses on financial relationships with ineligible companies (commercial interests) in the 24-month period preceding the time that the individual is being asked to assume a role controlling content of the activity.

Conflict of Interest

Circumstances create a conflict of interest when an individual has an opportunity to affect CME content regarding products or services of a commercial interest with which he/she has a financial relationship.

Continuing Education Disclosure Form

In compliance with ACCME's Standards for Integrity and Independence in Accredited Continuing Education, the APA, provider of continuing education activities, has a disclosure process to ensure that everyone who is in a position to control the content of an educational activity has disclosed all financial relationships with all ineligible companies (commercial interest) within the past 24 months (see glossary definitions). The APA has mechanisms in place to identify and mitigate all disclosed conflicts of interest prior to an educational activity.

The prospective audience must be informed of the planners' and presenters' affiliations with ineligible companies (commercial interests) by an acknowledgement in published materials and by oral or visual disclosure to participants at live sessions. Disclosure by slide is also required. If an individual has no relationships, the learner must be informed of that as well. The APA also requires identification by presenters and authors of discussion of unlabeled uses of a commercial product or investigational use of a product not yet approved for this purpose.

Each planner and presenter/author (including co-chairpersons, and discussants, and all authors) must complete a Disclosure Form, even if no relationship exists. An individual who refuses to disclose will be disqualified from being a planning committee member, a faculty member, or an author of continuing education.

Program Planners must affirm that they commit to recusal if they themselves disclose a conflict of interest in the planning of an education activity.
